

Our standard training product is Instructor-led training, generally delivered on client sites. Trainers we select are particularly capable developers who often have multiple certifications in the respective technologies, and importantly, also possess the pedagogic skills required to communicate concepts in an easy-to-understand manner.

Each student receives a course workbook containing the entire theoretical content of the course, as well solutions to the exercises performed in class. Classroom content is typically 40% discussion and 60% hands-on exercises.

To request an offer for an Instructor-Led classroom course, click on “Home” above to select your subject category and course title. Then click on “Request an offer for classroom delivery of this course.”

For advice about which course is right for you, just contact us.